How our Programs Work

Online Self-Study Programs:

Step 1 – Register for/purchase the course.
Step 2 – View the course online through the link in your confirmation email or in your account.
Step 3 – Read the PDF chapters provided (if applicable).
Step 4 – Follow the instructions provided to receive your CE certificate. An evaluation and a short exam are a part of this process.

Each self-study is valid for CE credit for a wide variety of professional boards*. CE credits are available for 1-year from purchase.

*Please verify CE availability with your professional board and/or refer to HFA's list of Board Approvals, located on each program’s webpage.

Webinar Programs:

Webinars are affordable ways to easily access information from some of the best-known names in the field, providing hands-on strategies that can be applied in your clinical practice.

Each 90-minute live webinar offers 1.5 CE credits and can be accessed on-demand for a full year after the live program. Organizational and individual registration options are available:

Step 1 – Register for the program.
Step 2 – View the program on the live date (viewing instructions will be emailed to you in the days leading up to the program) or access the recorded program and related materials through your HFA account (a recorded program viewing link is also in your receipt).
Step 3 – View the program in its entirety.
Step 4 – Follow the instructions provided to receive your CE certificate (via educate.hospicefoundation.org).
Step 5 – If you’re an organization who hosted a viewing of the webinar, return your sign-in sheet to HFA.
Holistic treatment of individuals who are terminally ill or bereaved should include the needs of the whole person. Yet the most basic of human desires, those that include intimate and sexual relationships, are frequently avoided, dismissed, or unaddressed by healthcare, social service, clergy and bereavement professionals. Patients, family caregivers, and clients can be inhibited by the deeply personal nature of intimacy and sexuality and often do not raise concerns with professionals.

In this program, Hospice Foundation of America will identify barriers to intimacy and sexuality for terminally-ill persons and the bereaved. The program will emphasize the knowledge and skills that professionals must have to sensitively address intimacy and sexuality and suggest interventions that can help dying and bereaved persons address these elemental human needs.

At the conclusion of this program, participants will be able to:

- Define and contrast intimacy and sexuality and describe how these needs may affect the care and well-being of dying and bereaved individuals;

- Describe barriers to meeting the needs of intimacy and the sexual desires of individuals who are coping with life-threatening illness;

- Discuss sensitivities, skills and knowledge that end-of-life professionals should possess to use appropriate interventions that address the intimacy and sexual needs of dying persons;

- Describe the intimacy and sexual needs of individuals who are bereaved and identify barriers that inhibit opportunities to address such needs;

- Discuss sensitivities, skills and knowledge that end-of-life professionals should employ when addressing issues of intimacy and sexuality with bereaved individuals;

- Identify the ethical issues, including boundaries, that healthcare professionals should be aware of when helping clients and patients meet intimate and sexual needs.

Aging America: Coping with Loss, Dying and Death in Later Life

FEATURED EXPERTS
- Brian de Vries, PhD
- Kenneth J. Doka, PhD, MDiv
- Patricia Murphy, PhD, APN, FAAN, FPCN

HOSTED BY Frank Sesno, Director, School of Media & Public Affairs, The George Washington University

America is aging at a rapid rate with 10,000 people in the U.S. turning 65 every day. Medicare is expected to include 80 million enrollees by 2040. The vast majority of this growing population will likely face multiple losses—spouse, partner, independence, identity—and complex medical care needs. How can mental health professionals, healthcare providers, clergy, bereavement counselors, and the wider community support the growing number of aging Americans through their losses and healthcare challenges in later life? Aging America panelists integrate their expertise to deliver an in-depth discussion on innovative programs and new approaches to support older adults.

Understanding the Value of Funerals for Children
90 minutes; 1.5-2 CE hours available for $10

Understanding the Value of Funerals for Children seeks to further professional and public knowledge about whether children should attend funerals and suggests ways to support them and involve them in developmentally appropriate ways.

Funerals can be highly therapeutic – not only to adults but also to children. It is critical that funeral directors, as well as parents, clergy, educators, counselors and social service professionals, understand the importance and therapeutic value of such rituals and assist children in selecting the ways in which they can comfortably attend and even participate in such rituals.

The program combines a moderated discussion and informative interviews. It is appropriate for parents, health care professionals, psychologists, counselors, clergy, social workers, nurses, educators, and community members with an interest in the well-being of children.

Organizations may choose to use this program as a community outreach/engagement event.

- 1.5-2 credits are available for a variety of professional boards for $10 per certificate (ASWB has approved the program for 1.5 credit hours).
- A Certificate of Attendance is free with discount code. Contact HFA at educate@hospicefoundation.org to obtain code.
- Viewers can obtain 2 credits: 1) by attending a local 30-minute post-program discussion or 2) by participating in a 30-minute HFA-hosted conference call.

Artificial Nutrition & Hydration

Artificial nutrition and hydration can be helpful to a patient whose condition can improve or be reversed, or whose ability to swallow can be safely restored such as when surgery affects the digestive system, or if there is a blockage that prevents normal digestion.

Hospice Foundation of America brought together a panel of clinical experts to educate other clinicians about the dilemmas that sometimes arise around tube feeding and to correct misinformation about artificial nutrition and hydration.

Hospice: Something More

This 60-minute program takes an intimate look into the hospice experiences of patients and families, including an interview with a young mother who discusses how hospice care is changing her life after her diagnosis of advanced, terminal cancer.

Audiences are afforded a rare glimpse into the lives of hospice patients in the one-hour special program, “Hospice: Something More,” available online and on DVD*. The program was produced by Hospice Foundation of America and funded by a grant from the John and Wauna Harman Foundation.

                               | For example: Your hospice would like to receive 150 copies of Journeys each month for distribution on your in-house list.
                               | You would order 150 copies at $6.82 apiece and receive 150 copies each month for 12 months.
                               | 150 x $6.82 = $1,023.00                                                                                                                              |

Words from our Readers

"The newsletters were very, very helpful and reassuring. I looked forward to them and [they] were always what I needed."

"Journeys has been very helpful for our Hospice families and staff. We are grateful to have access to the important and useful information you provide."
Playwright Bryan Harnetiaux has written a trilogy of plays that provides a rich opportunity for self-examination and community dialogue on fundamental questions surrounding death and dying.

Pricing
- $175 - single performance, one-year license
- $450 - single performance of each play in the trilogy, one-year license
- $450 - license for three performances of one play within one year

Other licensing combinations are also available; contact HFA for details.

Plays can be used individually or in any combination by hospices, churches, medical schools, community groups and other organizations as an educational tool and as a vehicle for creating dialogue about end-of-life issues.

Vesta
Offers a warm and often funny exploration of a family’s struggle with a variety of end-of-life issues as they come to terms with the illness and death of Vesta Pierson, their matriarch. Vesta is a 90-minute, seven-character play about the last five years of the title character's life.

Dusk
A five-character, 70-minute drama, deepens the conversation about end of life. Gil Everette has had a heart attack and is now in congestive heart failure. On the eve of his 65th birthday, Gil and his adult children, with a medical social worker on hand, explore Gil's wishes regarding life-sustaining treatment options.

Holding On ~ Letting Go
An often humorous, yet heartrending look at a family forced to come to terms with the end of a life, and saying goodbye. Fifty-one-year-old Bobby Alexander and his family confront Bobby's end-stage liver failure and the murky boundary line between living fully and accepting death. This intimate six-character, 70-minute drama explores the role of hospice care in the wilderness of a terminal illness and impending death.

“This project is fantastic—I just wish more people knew about it. I can’t understand why every hospice across the country isn’t doing them!”
- Victoria Spear
Hospice of Sacred Heart, Eugene OR

“Calvert Hospice in Prince Frederick, MD incorporated the play Holding On~Letting Go last year into our annual Hospice and Palliative Care Conference and it was a huge success! The play was performed by students at the local community college and they did a marvelous job. All who watched it were deeply touched.”

Living with Grief® 2020

Intimacy and Sexuality During Illness and Loss

Holistic treatment of individuals who are terminally ill or bereaved should include the needs of the whole person. Yet the most basic of human desires, those that include intimate and sexual relationships, are frequently avoided, dismissed, or unaddressed by healthcare, social service, clergy and bereavement professionals. Patients, family caregivers, and clients can be inhibited by the deeply personal nature of intimacy and sexuality and often do not raise concerns with professionals.

Sponsorships begin at $250 and includes a site registration

Professional Education Webinars

Each year, HFA offers live professional education webinars featuring experienced professionals who offer their expertise on the program topic. Webinar participants include a concentrated group of individuals, each of whom has an interest in topics dealing with loss, bereavement and end-of-life care.

Webinar underwriting begins at $2,500

Journeys Newsletter

Published monthly, Journeys is distributed to 41,000 grieving families and individuals a month and offers support and practical advice on coping with loss. This publication is available for individual or bulk subscription and is circulated through community hospice bereavement programs.

Sponsorships begins at $5,000
About Hospice Foundation of America

Hospice Foundation of America (HFA) is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization HFA meets its mission by providing programs for professional development, public education and information; funding research, producing publications, and by providing information on issues related to hospice and end-of-life care. Our programs for healthcare professionals are designed to improve care of those with terminal illness and those experiencing the process of grief, and are offered on a national basis. Our programs for the public are designed to assist individual consumers of health care who are coping with issues of caregiving, terminal illness, and grief.

Educational Programs

HFA improves the quality of hospice care by providing excellent resources and support to professionals. All programs are available for purchase separately. Continuing education credits are available for each program from a variety of boards and available for one year following the live date. A list of approved boards is available on each program’s webpage, available at www.hospicefoundation.org. Individual registrations are intended for viewing by one person and cannot be shared. One CE certificate fee is included in individual registration. Multi-viewer registrations are intended for program viewing by more than one person at a single location.
