UNDERSTANDING THE VALUE OF FUNERALS FOR CHILDREN

PROGRAM INFORMATION

DESCRIPTION:
It is estimated that one in five children in the U.S. will experience the death of someone in their intimate network before they are 15 years old. Parents and guardians often struggle with the grief of their children from such losses, unsure of how to support them through their grief journey, particularly when they are grieving themselves. There is a widespread belief that children below a certain age (and this age is typically defined by the family, culture, and sometimes, reason for death) should not attend funerals because the experience would frighten them, harm them, or unnecessarily upset them. Yet child development and grief experts agree that funerals and other memorial events can provide a meaningful and healing experience for children, providing them with a way to understand death and celebrate the person they love. Attending a funeral and participating in it can be a positive experience for children of any age. However, children need to be prepared for a funeral, and they need to be supported during the experience. This program seeks to educate professionals who work with children, families, and guardians so that they can, in turn, educate families about the value of funerals for children.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES:
At the conclusion of this webinar, participants will be able to:

1. Understand the therapeutic value of funeral and memorial rituals and recognize the importance of and options for ritual regardless of whatever choice is made for the disposition of remains;
2. Acknowledge that some choices such as cremation or non-traditional funerals may be confusing or troubling to children and develop ways of addressing concerns that may arise as children question and discuss such choices;
3. Recognize the varied roles that counselors, clergy, celebrants and funeral directors may have in the funeral and discuss ways that they can both facilitate or complicate the grief of children and adults;
4. Delineate the components of the varied concepts that children need to master in order to comprehend death and describe the ways that attendance at a funeral or memorial service may facilitate the mastery of these concepts;
5. Describe three principles that should be applied in order to allow children to decide on whether and how they might be involved in the funerals of other family members or persons within their intimate networks;
6. Describe options that might be offered to children to allow them to personalize their involvement in funeral rituals;
7. Discuss the relationship between funerals and complicated grief, noting both the sensitivities that adults should exhibit in complicated grief situations such as sudden and traumatic loss as well as the ways that problematic funerals can trigger complicated grief reactions;
8. Discuss interventive strategies that can be employed in problematic funeral situations that can include such issues as children being excluded from participation, rituals are unavailable, the child regrets earlier choices made; or the child or adolescent feels unsafe to attend;
9. Define therapeutic rituals and indicate four types of therapeutic rituals that might further assist children in coping with death and loss.

EXPERT PANELISTS:

Tashel C. Bordere, PhD, CT
Dr. Bordere is Assistant Professor of Human Development and Family Science and State Extension Specialist in Youth Development at the University of Missouri-Columbia where she teaches Childhood Death and Bereavement, Black Families, Adolescence and Young Adulthood, and Lifespan Development. She is past editor of The Forum (Association for Death Education and Counseling), past board member of the Association for Death Education and Counseling, and past Chair of the People of Color/Multicultural Committee. Dr. Bordere has conducted numerous workshops, consultations, trainings and published works relating to diversity and resilience through loss, including her recent co-edited and co-written book (with Darcy Harris), Handbook of Social Justice in Loss and Grief. Dr. Bordere was featured on NPR, “Teens and Grief,” and in Hospice Foundation of America’s “Living with Grief: Helping Adolescents Cope with Loss.” Her research focuses on adolescent adjustment to death and loss, with emphasis on assaultive violence, homicidal death, coping and grief among African American youth. She also studies New Orleans death rituals. Dr. Bordere developed SHED Grief Tools to educate and equip teachers with tools to support youth coping with death and non-death loss in the context of school settings.

Kenneth J. Doka, PhD, MDiv
Dr. Ken Doka is a grief and bereavement expert who developed the concept of disenfranchised grief. A prolific author and editor on a wide range of grief topics, including grieving styles and the significance of ritual, Dr. Doka served as professor of gerontology at the Graduate School of The College of New Rochelle (NY) for 38 years. As senior consultant to HFA for 25 years, he is author and editor for HFA’s Living with Grief® book series, its Journeys newsletter, and numerous other books and publications, including his recently published Grief is a Journey: Finding Your Path Through Loss. Dr. Doka consults frequently with funeral service providers. An internationally-known lecturer on the topic of grief, he is a past president of the Association for Death Education and Counseling (ADEC) and received its Special Contributions Award in the field of Death Education, and in 2019, he received ADEC’s Lifetime Achievement Award. He is a member and past chair of the International Work Group on Death, Dying, and Bereavement. Dr. Doka is a mental health counselor, licensed in the state of New York, and he is an ordained Lutheran minister. He serves on the advisory board of the Tragedy Assistance Program for Survivors (TAPS).

William G. Hoy, DMin, FT
Dr. Bill Hoy has taught at Baylor University since the spring of 2012. He is widely regarded as an authority on the sociocultural history of funeral rites, the topic of his most recent book: Do Funerals Matter: The Purposes and Practices of Death Rituals in Global Perspective (Routledge, 2013). He brings nearly 20 years of clinical experience in palliative care to the Medical Humanities faculty, having directed pastoral care and bereavement programs at two southern California hospices. From 1985 to 1995, Dr. Hoy served as a pastor in the Los Angeles area. Besides teaching at Baylor, he is a popular lecturer for groups of caregiving professionals around the United States and Canada, delivering about 40 keynote presentations and workshops every year. His books include Guiding People through Grief (Compass, 2007) and Road to Emmaus (2008). He has also authored more than 100 book chapters, educational pamphlets and journal articles over the last 25 years, including a chapter on African American celebrity funerals for a forthcoming book to be published by University of Quebec Press.

Denise Rollins, PhD, MA
Dr. Rollins is a master life coach, speaker and executive director of the Whole Heart Grief & Life Resource Center in Frederick, Maryland, where her team offers one-on-one coaching and group support services. She holds a doctorate in marriage and family therapy from Eastern University
